CHAPTER IV

CONCLUSION

There are some points that can be concluded from the study. The first thing to be concluded is that every character's in the novel have their own characteristics. Coltrain is a young doctor in the Jacobsville medical clinic together with Louise Blakely. He is one of the surgeons who has high skill. At the beginning the character of Coltrain in the story is a cold and unpleasant person. But in the end of the story, he becomes care and wants to life together with Louise. from the beginning until the end of the story his attitude become different. The characters of Coltrain are classified to round character, because Coltrain's attitude is different and changes along the story.

The second thing is Louise character. Louise is Coltrain's partner in the Jacobsville medical clinic. She works in Jacobsville because she wants to work in her parent born city. The character of Louise in the strory is a strong and tolerant person. Louise always obeys and respects to Coltrain. Sometimes she fights back to Coltrain. In the end she accepted Coltrain's Proposal.

The third thing is the conflict between Coltrain and Louise. The cold attitude of Coltrain which is always mocking, blaming and can not control his emotion when he speaks with Louise and never appreciate what he has done to Louise creates conflict with Louise. The conflict between them raises more when Coltrain knows that Louise is the daughter of Dr. Blakely, a person who destroyed his happiness in the past. Another conflict is influenced by gossip that spreads in hospitals about the kiss that Coltrain did to Louise. He then accused Louise casually without asking her first. It makes Louise angry. The conflict becomes complicated when Louise misunderstands Coltrain. It happend when they go shopping for an engagement ring, they met Coltrain former lover, when Coltrain said to his former lover that he want to look for an engagment ring to Louise with reluctant intonation Louise goes out and thinks that Coltrain has just proposed a sham engagement. But in the end they becomes married.
