CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

In this chapter, the researcher presents the conclusion from the discussion on findings of the study and suggestion for other researcher or the reader.

5.1 Conclusion

The researcher finds the representatives illocutionary acts used by Barrack Obama in Presidential Election Debate. The representative illocutionary acts focused on kinds and functions used by Barrack Obama's utterance. The researcher answered two research problems into one problem, because she is sure that every kind of representative acts has a function of what her/his utterance. The conclusion of the data findings and the discussion of this research is that the kinds of representatives aspect can be a function in every kinds.

Here are the details of the kinds and functions of the utterances of Barrack Obama in Presidential Election Debate. a) informing to assert (32.16%); b) informing to report (30.06%); c) denying to assert (11.88 %); d) agreeing to announce (9.06%); e) agreeing to assert (6.92%); f) disagreeing to announce (5 %); g) suggesting to instruct (2.79%); h) suggesting to assert (2.09%); i) confirming to assert (1.39%); j) informing to instruct (0.69%);

In conclusion, the most kinds and functions of representative illocutionary acts are informing to assert type, because through his speeches on debate, Barrack Obama tried to influence his people, in order to they voted him. Besides that, he intended to give important information based on the fact of situation, which was happened in their nation, United States.

5.2 Suggestion

This research explains the kinds and functions of representative illocutionary acts that used by Barrack Obama in Presidential Election Debate from 2008 until 2012 period.

The researcher wishes the next research can complete the result of this study, so it can be a contribution to development of the study of meaning, especially in Pragmatic field. Therefore, the researcher suggests the further researcher to make deepen and enhance research on representative speech acts, especially in other political debate speeches. Futher research also may explore the use of other speech acts in political debate speeches, due to the delimination, the present research only explores the representative utterances of Barrack Obama in Presidential Election Debate, from 2008 until 2012 period.

