CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

This chapter presents two points that relates to conclusion of the results of the study discussed in the previous chapter and suggestions that can be used to interpret cohesive devices in proper context.

5.1 Conclusion

The objective of this study is explain and to identify the grammatical cohesion used in "XXX:Return Of Xander Cage (2017)" movie written by F. Scott Frazier (2017) and also to describe the function of cohesive devices uses in this movie.

The conclusion is drawn from the analysis showing that All types of grammatical cohesion are used by the four main characters in this movie except nominal ellipsis. In 15 scenes, the are 452 grammatical cohesive devices. From 452 cohesions, 84% is personal reference. It appears 406 times. In other word, personal reference is the most often used devices within the movie. The most frequent reference is personal reference. Additive conjunction is in the second place, which is, 7% (30) times, followed by demonstrative reference which appears 17 times (3%). Adversative conjunction then follows, which is, 10 time appearance (3%). Comparative reference is 7 times, causal conjunction is 5 times, and temporal conjunction is 6 occurrences or 1% of appearance. The last is verbal substitution, verbal ellipsis, and clausal substitution, each appears twice. Nominal substitution and clausal ellipsis appear once each.

For the functions of grammatical cohesion found within the movie are expressed by some divisions. First, reference has three important functions are to avoid repeating the same words, to point out a scale of proximity, and to compare something or situation. Second, substitution and ellipsis simplify and accurate the utterance. The last is conjunction, it has six functions are to relate similar or identical words, to coordinate sentences, to opposite the preceding statement, to connect between cause and effect in a sentence, and to connect chronology. Beside the function are mentioned above, the general and basic function of grammatical cohesion is to relate words, clauses, phrases, or sentence in order to make the sentence meaningful.

In conclusion, the grammatical cohesion use in this movie is very important to formatting sense of sentence. Then most function grammatical cohesion is appear in this study is personal reference. In the other word, personal reference is very important and has key position in constructing a meaning.

5.2 Suggestion

The present study has focused on grammatical cohesion use in "XXX:Return Of Xander Cage (2017)" movie. Grammatical cohesion is one of the kinds of cohesive device. The researcher suggest for future researcher to deepen cohesive devices exophora which are not found in this study. The study in cohesive devices exophora are rarely found. It may become a chance for the next researcher to investigate cohesive devices exophora. And the next researcher can use another object and angle. The previous studies mostly use research articles and academic publications as their data. So, it is more recommended to choose the other different data in order to present the different result of their data analysis. And the next researcher can analyze from the other angle like when the cohesive device are used or the other.
