

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION

After presenting the result of analysis in the previous chapter, the conclusion is taken in this part. The conclusion is drawn based on the formulated research questions.

Twelve Years a Slave is telling about African American discrimination on their lives of the otherness who live in the America that carried out by White people in Americans.

From the analysis, the researcher finds ambivalence, mimicry hybridity and otherness based on process of postcolonialism in the Twelve Years a Slave. As a slave, Solomon Northup clarifies that he get treat. Solomon has image as an African American people which the sacrifice, because it is the character of African American who get treat from American. Solomon and the other black people considered as the other, because they also decline of American. Otherness postcolonial depicts the life the African American treat by American or white people as the origin colony, they sacrifice from colonize, feel agony. Based on the analysis, the study uses otherness postcolonial theory. The ambivalence comes from the feeling that Solomon gets when he is slave. The mimicry also talk about the imitate White people. The otherness comes from the torturing African American by American. In otherness postcolonial, there are three forms of happens that grow chronologically. The first, when Solomon tells about slave market. The second, when white people showing their cruel, it means in every American always want to kill them. The third, when Solomon say the truth but American will kill him.

While, based on the analysis, the study also uses hybridity postcolonial theory. The hybridity comes from the dominant power American or white people. Hybridity is not only the power of the culture. In this thesis the researcher the dominant power used in treat of African American.

The last point, this story ends with an happy ending because the main character or Solomon because Solomon become free again and come back in his family.

Based on the analysis, the study can conclude that is correct that African American being discriminated by the American or white people. They assume that the African American are not educated and their property, so they don't need to be given the opportunity. Finally, their existence slowly shift to remote period.
