3.1. Mrs. Alving's Anxiety in Henrik Ibsen's Ghost

During life time, women are at increased risk for anxious. This anxiety of women influenced with problems of life such as about marriage, to be a mother, to be a wife. From that, it will get the category of women anxious such as phobia, nervousness, panic, recollection (Ross et al 1).

Marriage is often a structural context of opportunity for husbands and wives to behave in ways that validate their identities as male and female, that is, to display the visible aspects of their gender ideologies (Lang 1137). In addition, wife is a woman, who has married, becomes a mother who will bring up the children to become intelligent and good. Every woman wants to get happiness in relationship. Every woman dreams to have a loyal partner and favored her

As is the case when Manders asked about married life Mrs. Alving, Manders asked whether or not to forget about the incident during a wedding. Manders also asked if it still remember with the figure of her husband. With these questions, Mrs. Alving getting caught in anxiety.

Later, they continue the conversation by discussing about Oswald. Manders blame Mrs. Alving because her responsibilities have forgotten a mother, Mrs. Alving send Oswald to Paris so that her son is not affected by the dark life of his household. Manders always want to know about past occurrences. This made Mrs. Alving increasingly nervous with talk with Manders. This is evident from the conversation below.

Mander. I was but the humble instrument of a higher power. And is it not true that my having been able to bring you again under the yoke of duty and obedience sowed the seeds of a rich blessing on all the rest of your life? Did things not turn out as I foretold to you? Did not your husband turn from straying in the wrong path, as a man should? Did he not, after that, live a life of love and good report with you all his days? Did he not become a benefactor to the neighborhood? Did he not so raise you up to his level, so that by degree you became his fellow-worker in all his undertakings—and a noble fellow-worker, too? I know, Mrs. Alving; that praise I will give you. But now I come to the second serious false step in your life.
