CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

5.1 Conclusion

The writer concludes that register is a variant of language that is used in the particular jobs or communities to describe the specific vocabulary associated with different occupational groups and usually cannot be understood by other people or other groups of community. It could be described as an occupational style. Register helps people to express their identity at a specific time or place and how they seek to present their self to others. Different social interaction also becomes the factor of the different register in using language. Such as the different language which is used by computer community, a language which is used by lecturer in the class or a language which is used by photographer community. They seem to have different register in their communication.

After analyzing the data the writer finds 21 unique words which are considered as the register used by character in shooter movie. Those words had the meaning related to their job as army in United States. The terms are not easily understood by people outside this group except United Stated army. Those words are classified into parts of speech. There are 18 nouns, 1 adjectives and 2 nouns phrase.

Moreover, register divided into three categories: field, tenor and mode. Field talked about shooter situation. When people in this community did their mission of Army. Tenor was indicates the role relationship between the speaker and addressee. It influences the formality of the language used. In shooter movie they used formal and informal language. The last of the categories of register were mode. The level of their conversation in spoken form made their communication is more specific. They used language spontaneously in their conversation.
