

CHAPTER IV

CONCLUSION

Mario Puzo's The Godfather is the novel, which has two different ironic points. In the one hand, this novel has brutality that appears in the homicide of the enemies. In other hand, this novel is containing with the morality that appears in the personality of the main character, Don Vito Corleone. However, this study chooses to dig the morality points deeply.

This study reveals the morality of the main characters, Don Vito Corleone in psychological point of view. In addition, moral criticism puts in this study to makes the results more accurate. As mentioned previously, that Don Vito Corleone, even though he is the head of criminal syndicate, has the morality. The evidences appear in the chapter three. Don Vito Corleone services others shows that Don Vito helps everyone who needs helps. The old friend Nazorine, who needs protection for his daughter's love, thanks to Don Vito help. In addition, the old friend Bonasera who never declares his friendship to Don Vito, nevertheless, Don Vito helps him. The young Vito gives the best problem solving to Mrs. Colombo who takes care the dog in her room. In addition, he helps the nurse and saves her from the death called Luca Brasi. Moreover, the nurse always gets some money from Don Vito to live her life. As the family man, Don Vito can be the best advisor to his son and godson. It is showed when his godson, Johnny Fontane, comes with a lot of problem and needs some helps of godfather. Don Vito gives the best advice and solves the problems of Johnny. In addition, he arranges to take his youngest son, Michel Corleone, from the military that send to the world war and it may be killed his son. As human being, Don Vito Corleone has limitation. He cannot solve the problem between husband and wife, even though it is his daughter problem. Don Vito cannot meddle relationship between husband and wife. Moreover, by those explanations above, Don Vito services others is true.

In addition, the settling the jealousy from others by Don Vito happens in sub chapter B. The description shows that Don Vito can accept the happiness and settle the jealousy even though it comes from his enemies. Don Vito can accept the happiness from the murderer such a Luca Brasi. Even Don Vito greets him as the king greets the war hero. Then, the godson how needs the happiness to complete his life. Don Vito gives his godson happiness to be the winner of Oscar nomination. In addition, when the families demand Don Vito to protect the drugs seller, Don Vito protects it. It happens because of he accepts the happiness of his enemies, which are happy to sell drugs. Moreover, he needs to achieve the peace that hoped by the enemies. Therefore, the conclusion for this study is Moral of Don Vito Corleone is the winner. Don Vito Corleone, even though he is the head of crime syndicate, has morality in his personality. Moral that appears in Don Vito personality affects his decision and gives him ability to solve the problem perfectly.
